Joseph Charafi Announces Campaign for Clark County Commissioner District F: “Protecting Our Kids, Strengthening Our Communities”

Las Vegas, NV — Southern Highlands resident, small-business owner, and anti-trafficking advocate Joseph Daniel Anthony Charafi today announced his candidacy for Clark County Commissioner, District F as a Republican, pledging to bring integrity, accountability, and innovation to local government.

As CEO of Charafi Entertainment and Founder of the Stop the Traffic Foundation, Charafi has built a career at the intersection of media, advocacy, and community service. His work has focused on exposing child trafficking in Nevada and building real-world solutions to protect vulnerable youth.

“I’m a father, a filmmaker, and a Las Vegas who’s tired of watching our community struggle with the same problems year after year,” Charafi said. “I’m running for County Commissioner because our families deserve safe neighborhoods, transparent leadership, and a county government that works for the people — not for itself.”

Charafi’s platform for District F centers on:

Protecting Children and Families: Expanding county partnerships with law enforcement and nonprofits to combat child trafficking, strengthen foster-care oversight, and build safe-haven networks at public spaces and businesses.

Economic Growth and Jobs: Supporting small-business development, encouraging tech and film-industry investment, and promoting smart growth that balances innovation with quality of life.

Community Safety and Infrastructure: Improving public safety funding, holding developers accountable for infrastructure delays, and ensuring responsible use of taxpayer dollars.

Homelessness and Addiction Recovery: Promoting compassionate, outcome-based programs that help individuals rebuild their lives while keeping public spaces clean and safe.

“I’m not a career politician — I’m a problem-solver,” Charafi added. “I’ve built coalitions, created jobs, and helped families through tough times. What we need now are leaders who act with courage and compassion — leaders who understand how to get things done.”

A lifelong creative professional and Nevada resident, Charafi brings a fresh, modern perspective to Clark County leadership. His nonprofit, Stop the Traffic Foundation, has partnered with civic groups, churches, and local leaders to raise awareness about trafficking and promote new safety technologies, including youth hotlines and vehicle-scanning initiatives.

“District F deserves a Commissioner who listens, acts, and delivers,” Charafi said. “When voters see my name on the ballot, they’ll know it represents someone fighting for safer streets, stronger families, and a brighter future for Clark County.”
